Dear Friends:

A couple of months ago, I bought a new computer. I sensed the old one might “crash,” and I was tired of competing with two eight year-olds who wanted to use it. For the first time in my life, I got a computer of my very own Technologically, I’m dangerous because besides e-mail and word processing, there is not much more I can do on a computer.

I find it ironic that God has placed me alongside a pregnancy center that is using advanced technology to minister more effectively. Care Net Pregnancy Center has received and is utilizing a donated ultrasound machine. They refer to it as a “window into the womb.” Statistics compiled by the Focus on the Family ministry shows, when a person in a crisis pregnancy receives counsel about her decision, she is more likely to carry that child to term.

When an ultrasound is added to the equation, even less abortions result. God is mobilizing me to use relationships in conjunction with the medical resources at Care Net to touch even more lives for His Glory.

Recently, I accompanied a teen during her ultrasound. Her eyes were fixed on the screen. First, there was a timid smile, it broadened and small tears formed. In a matter of a few minutes, her heart and eyes were flooded as she experienced this new life. The next will be to help her to make plans before the “arrival.”

Pray for this preparation season. Spiritually, this teen lacks any foundation and is currently expressed her disinterest in it. JESUS HAS ALL THE RESOURCES TO CHANGE THIS HEART! I’m counting on your time in intercession for her and her pre-born child.

His Servant,

Jody B. Julian
